Nancy Eleanor was born to Thomas and Mary McCullough in North Carolina. She married Richard John Keele in Bedford, Tennessee. Nine of her children were born in Bedford, Tennessee. The last two children were born in Green County, Illinois. Their family became converted to the LDS Church. Nancy, her husband, and some of her children moved to Nauvoo, Illinois. They had to leave the area due to so much persecution. They traveled with their son-in-law, Jeremiah Bingham, and his family. Their daughter, Sarah, was married to Jeremiah in 1846, but died in childbirth in 1852. Nancy's daughter, Susan, also married Jeremiah. They traveled with the John W. Cooley Wagon Company on September 9, 1853.

Then moved their family to Payson, Utah, where she died just three years later.
